Fred L. Smutzer of Denver Theater Company Gives Bittner People Jolly Time

BIG FEAST AT THE WILSON

Some of the Bright Things That Were Said and Some of the Topics That Were Explored.

That the life of an actor is not all rehearsal and performance was shown to good advantage last night, when the members of the Bittner company, seated studying the next new play long enough to gather round a banquet table at the Wilson, and enjoy an hour after the play of the evening was over, and the audience had gone home to dream about it.

The play at the Grand last night went through with unusual smoothness and actors never lost time in picking up their cues, nor the orchestra in cutting short its overtures. Then when the lights went out on the disappearing stage the company gathered in front of the darkened playhouse and strolled down to the Wilson, where the banquet was ready. Fred L. Smutzer of the Denver Theater company was host of the occasion, and announced the large and genial Mr. Bittner as toastmaster. After he had offered a toast to the ladies, and all the others had followed suit, the feast was enjoyed, and then something of the life of an actor's life came out in the toasts and talks of the players.

Mr. Smutzer told interestingly of his first acquaintance with the acting business, and the management of theaters, and how his actual interest in it had caused him to spread his control from one small theater in Denver to the grand old Wilson, where he had announced that after a month of darkness in which the Grand would be overhauled and improved in many material ways, it would again open, never to close a dark night all next winter. He assured the public, too, of high class plays and good players, and a change of bill frequently enough to allow them to keep coming without growing tired, and a good story and a hearty laugh from most of those present filled up the hour of midnight, and then the company went each its own way to study "verses" and to rehearse for the evening.

The Original.
Foley & Co., Chicago, originated Honey and Tar as a throat and lung remedy, and as a cure for the great merit and popularity of Foley's Honey and Tar many imitations are offered for the genuine. The doctors' must precede the manager's performance, while the advance manager didn't want the company to go to small towns any more, because whenever he dropped off the main at a junction station someone of the natives mistook him for the man who whitewashed the barn last spring with whitewash that came off, or the man that sold him the lightning rod that took all his year's crops, and wanted to whip him for the offense.

AUSTRIAN MINER KILLED.

Last Life in Performance of Act Which Saved a Friend.

Because he tried to shut off the electric current which was threatening to kill his companion, John Gola was killed by an electric shock in the Bingham New Haven mine at Bingham canyon yesterday afternoon. Gola was an Austrian employee of the mine, and while working with a partner in an underground tunnel he noticed him reach for the air pipe to get a grip strong enough to stop an ore car which was pushing. Instead of getting the air pipe he took hold of a live wire, and his companion at once rushed to a switchboard to stop the current. He succeeded, but in doing so received a shock which resulted fatally to him. Nobody else was present at the time, but the body was found dead at the switchboard shortly afterwards.

Doctors said He would not Live.
Peter J. Woodruff, P. M., writes: "After doctoring for two years with the best of the doctors, and still get no better, I had no business to attend to it, as I had been told it was a cure for nothing. I was cured for me. Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended to me by a friend and I immediately sent my boy to the store for it and after taking three bottles I began to feel better and continued to improve until I was entirely well." ## THE CAUSE OF DEATH.

How Orson Pratt Seemiller Musser Was Fatally Injured.

In memory of Orson Pratt Seemiller Musser, the facts surrounding his early death are here recorded. The numerous friends of A. Milton Musser and wife, Anna S. Musser, were gathered to learn of the sudden death of their son, Orson, on Monday, July 10, at 2:15 a. m.

The young man was born July 18, 1886, under circumstances of the most distressing character during the darkest period of the anti-Mormon raid. He was his mother's youngest son, and had lived until Tuesday next, would have been 19 years of age.

On Saturday, the 8th, at 8 p. m., he was in the employ of D. R. Hammond at Haysville, Boxelder county. He was riding with a son of Mr. Hammond, with plank on running gears of the wagon, returning from the day's work, when the horses became unmanageable, owing to being struck by a slipping load of the plank, and ran away, throwing the young man from the wagon, both wheels passing over his chest. He was removed at once to the home of Elder Hunsaker, where every attention was given him, including that of a surgeon summoned from Brigham City. While it was not thought at the time his injuries were serious, his parents were immediately notified, and his mother at once went to his bedside. He did not suffer and talked pleasantly with those about him, but a little after midnight he quietly and unexpectedly passed away on Monday morning at 2:15.

He was a young man of great promise. He was physically of a handsome appearance, genial in his personality, intelligent, sweet, and companionable. From his youth, he had observed the laws of life and health, but in such a manner as to not make his devotion to these precepts of the Gospel noticeable. Through his activity in Church callings he was promoted in the grades of the Priesthood and had attained that of an Elder. He regarded his parents, and particularly the kind solace which he always exercised toward his mother were noticeable to all of his acquaintances, and endeared him to all who appreciate filial devotion.

BOY'S BAD ACCIDENT.

Bernon J. Wells Seriously Hurt in Wheels of an Asphalt Wagon.

A most painful accident happened yesterday afternoon to Bernon J. Wells, the 14-year-old son of Joseph S. Wells of the Utah Light & Power company. The young man with his cousin, Kenneth Culmer, had been down town and while near the Alta club concluded to ride up South Temple towards home on one of the big asphalt wagons used in hauling paving material. The driver knew nothing of this until he heard a cry of pain. He stopped the wagon as quickly as possible and some men who were near by rescued the boy from his perilous position between one of the wheels and the bed of the wagon. He was carried into the residence of Dr. Niles and Dr. C. M. Wilcox was summoned and had the lad moved to the L. D. S. hospital, where his injuries received attention. The most serious hurt was on the calf of the right leg, where a frightful gash had been cut by the heavy tires of the wagon. The tendons and muscles were severed and ground out leaving an ugly hole several inches in area and very deep. The left leg was also badly scraped, and that no bone was broken is little less than marvelous.

Today the patient is progressing as nicely as possible, though it will be some time before he will be able to use his leg again even under the most favorable circumstances. The splendid courage of the boy commended itself to all who saw him under the extremely trying condition in which he was placed between the time of the accident and the time he was placed on the operating table. Not once did he wince at the pain or complain at his lot, and was as cool as the doctors in charge of his case.

CHANGED HUSBAND

Wife Made Wise Change in Food.

Change of diet is the only way to really cure stomach and bowel trouble.

A woman says: "My husband had dyspepsia when we were married and had suffered from it for several years. It was almost impossible to find anything he could eat without bad results."

"I thought this was largely due to the use of coffee and persuaded him to discontinue it. He did so, and began to drink Postum Food Coffee. The change did him good from the beginning, his digestion improved; he suffered much less from his nervousness, and when he added Grape-Nuts food to his diet he was soon entirely cured."

"My friend, Mrs. _____ of Vicksburg, (my former home) had become a nervous wreck also from dyspepsia. Medicine had no effect, neither did travel help her. On my last visit home, some months ago, I persuaded her to use Grape-Nuts food. She was in despair, and consented. She stuck to it until it restored her health so completely that she is now the most enthusiastic friend of Grape-Nuts that I ever knew. She eats it with cream or dry, just as it comes from the package—keeps it in her room and eats it whenever she feels like it."

"I began eating Grape-Nuts food, myself, when my baby was two months old, and I don't know what I should have done without it. My appetite was gone, I was weak and nervous and afforded but very little nourishment for the child. The Grape-Nuts food, of which I soon grew very fond, speedily set all this right again, and the baby grew healthy, rosy and beautiful as a mother could wish. He is two years old now and eats Grape-Nuts food himself. I wish every tired young mother knew of the good that Grape Nuts would do her."
